

Statement of participation

Oluwaseun Ajayi

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

Building confidence in using online forums

This free 8-hour course helped to build confidence in using online learning forums.

Issue date: 21 September 2023

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification.
This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner.

Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:

<https://www.open.edu/openlearn/education-development/building-confidence-using-online-forums/content-section-overview>

COURSE CODE: UOF_1

Building confidence in using online forums

<https://www.open.edu/openlearn/education-development/building-confidence-using-online-forums/content-section-overview>

Course summary

This free course, Building confidence in using online learning forums, identifies the value and benefits of posting to online learning forums. The course provides strategies to help you participate more fully in online learning forums and looks at how to make forums into a playful space, which forum writing is more suited to.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- recognise the learning benefits of participating on online learning forums with other learners
- recognise factors that might be a barrier to effective participation on online learning forums
- implement strategies to help overcome any barriers to effective participation on online learning forums
- use strategies to participate more fully in interactions on online learning forums, including ways of listening and responding to different points of view, and taking part in, and encouraging, discussion.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Session 1

Introduction

Session 1: Forums as you see them

Session 2

Session 2: Forums as a playful space

Session 3

Session 3: Forums as a space for talking

Session 4

Session 4: Forums as a shared social space